

ARCHBISHOP MCCARTHY HIGH SCHOOL · 10 YEAR DREAM KEYNOTE

Kevin Hernandez

Build a life that feels like mine.

In 10 years I hope to be back in Miami, running my own business, with a family and a life I'm proud of.

EDUCATION

The Next Step

After McCarthy I want to go to college and study business. I'm most interested in the entrepreneurship side of it — finance, marketing, and how a company actually runs day to day.

I also want to use college to meet people and get real experience, not just sit in class. An internship, a job, whatever I can get. And if I come up with an idea I believe in, I'd like to try starting something small while I'm still in school.

Building My Own Thing

Ten years out, I picture myself in Miami running my own business. I don't know exactly what it will be yet — that's the honest answer. I just know I want it to be mine.

I'm fine with working a lot, especially early on. What I really want is control over my own time, enough money that I'm not worried about money, and something I built that I'd put my name on.

LIFE OUTSIDE OF WORK

The Life I Want

Outside of work I keep picturing something pretty normal, honestly. A wife, two kids, a dog, and a house with enough room for people to come over. Sundays with family. The same friends I have now, still around.

I want to stay in the gym, get to the beach when I can, keep up with my teams, and probably spend too much on a car at some point.

See You in 10

If it goes the way I hope: I'm living in Miami, running my own business, and I pull up with my wife, our two kids, and probably the dog too.

By then I want to have made it to Barcelona — Spain is the one trip I really want to take. Comfortable, not rich. Proud of what I built, and still close with the same people I care about now.

I know it won't go exactly like this. I just want to look back and know it was all mine.
